KEYTESVILLE, MISSOURL.

One of our state exchanges asks "Won't some of our readers suggest some plan by which our roads can be improved or at least made passable? Platte is too rich a country and deserving of too much prosperity to be always cursed with bad roads. The roads are the farmers' highway and there is one way by which they may be improved at all events. Just let the citizens of a given county come together and determine they will have them. Say then where they want them. Every lane isn't a road but now-a-days few roads are more than lanes. Make up yours minds to have two main roads running through the county, east to west and north to south, or as the travel and necessities indicate. Then appoint a committee whose duty it shall be to call into requisition the services of a civil engineer and tell dent of the F. & L. U., of this state, him what has been determined on. Let him ascertain what material their host." Missouri has few strongcomeatable within the shortest distance is the best, and then make plans for the work, giving an estimate of cost of hauling, of making the road bed, and of constructing the road. Then determine how the mon ey is to be raised (if this has not been done before) and issue bonds payable, principal and interest, in ten years and tax the community to pay for them .- Rural World.
